Long, reading night by the council, after a recommendation had been made by Solicitor D. M. McCloskey.

Mr. McCloskey appeared at the meeting of council by request to give an opinion on the gas matter. It had been a question in the minds of the councilmen whether or not the Greensboro Gas company held an exclusive franchise here, but Mr. McCloskey, in his statement before council, said that this would be impossible by law. A borough has not only the right to grant natural gas companies a franchise in a borough or city, where others are already in the same business, but it is really compelled to admit competiting companies, if they

Committee Makes Report and the Ordinance Will be

Revised

At the meeting of council last night, the request of the bondsmen the garbage contractor, Samuel Nutting, to be dismissed brought on an avalanche of trouble which was only been thrown off the track and possibly McCloskey was present on this and other matters, and gave his opinion that the bondsmen could not be released, unless at the risk of the council. Councilman Lyan of the garbage committee made a report to the effect that Mr. Nutting was not doing his duty. R. J. Whitehead, one of the bondsmen, was present, and asked in what particular he was neglecting his duty, to be informed that there were barrels and boxes left inside the door of the plant, the garbage was irregularly collected, and not properly burned. Besides this the garbage contractor was charged with being absent and neglecting his duty at various times.

The matter was discussed pro and con by the members of council. after which Mr. Nutring was instructed to remove the barrels and boxes, and collect the garbage regularly, besides fulfilling his contract in other ways. He was instructed to a once each week, in accordance with the orginance, and conject a lon in the keeping of garbage.

The committee from the council, composed of J. Frew, H. S. Piersol and C. O. Frye, which met with the milkmen last week, reported that matters have been adjusted with one exception, that of local inspection. Council accepted the report and givstructed the ordinance committee to revise the ordinance in compliance with the agreements reached.

Councilman Piersol of the fire, water and light committee reported that bose secured from the Eureka Hose company in 1904 had failed to last out the guaranteed time; and it was decided to send it back with the request that better hose be sent, as per agreement.

The matter of the approach to the new Maple Creek bridge, which is to be erected near town, was discussed. and council decided to build their own approach, and let Speers borough do the same. It was at first intended to act jointly with Speers in the building of the approach.

Solicitor McCloskey stated that the Charleroi Water company wanted an ordinance granting them the 10 years additional hydrant contract, agreed upon when matters were settled. An ordinance which Mr. McClockey presented passed first reading.

The ordinances in regard to the opening up of McKean avenue and concerning the change of the course of Lincoln avenue were held over for the time being.

President Piersol was in the chair, and councilmen present were J. Frew. C. O. Frye, William H. Calvert, Oscar Lynn and J. K. Hein.

Training Farmers.

A movement is on foot that has Governmental sanction to adapt the schools of the rural sections to express the daily life of the patrons. In other words, the object is to teach agriculture and its possibilities to such an extent that every child wil be able to make a living from a piece of land if necessary, when it reaches its majority. To accomplish this a system of ex-to the retailers, however. As a matter of fact the retailer is getting as hard, a squeeze as the consumer. Pretty nearly everything the latter buys nowadays is being constantly advanced by the wholesalers and manufacturers. Every retailer finds bis business expenses mounting, while his profits are diminishing in a ratio that is startling. The grocer finds himself paying twenty-five to fifty cents more a case for canned goods; the clothier is taxed a dollar a dozen more for the dollar shirts he sells his patrons; the dry goods man pays half or a cent more a yard on dry goods; the shoe man is taxed a few cents more on every pair of shoes he offers his patrons, while the hardware man pays twenty-five, flity or senenty five cents more a dozen for the staple articles he sells that have had a fixed price for years. In the printing business the increase in paper and type has been enormous.

While some of these prices are under the jurisdiction of trusts and combinatons, the most of the advances are made through mere verbal agreements. Competing concerns find it much more profitable to agree on a uniform rate than to cut one another's throats. The trusts have taught their lessons well, and their plan can now be effectively carried out in almost nold's famous march through the every line of business without the least semblance of an organization. It is a hard matter to find a remedy, and unless the consumer can refrain from consuming they will have to

In order to avoid factional fights the council and school board adopted the plan of rotating the office in order each year, and the plan has worked well. The public funds are in the best of hands, and the duties of treasurer are administered in a business like manner without costing the taxpayers a single cent.

HER GREETING.

In Spite of the Old Lady's Gare She' Managed to Blunder.

The daughters of a certain charming old lady in Washington are frequently much upset by the odd social blunders of their parent, whose failings in this respect are, however, more than offset by her kindliness of manner.

Among the callers to the house of this family was a Mrs. Farrell, who, after some years of widowhood, again married, this time becoming the wife of a Mr. Meggs. "If you love us, mother," said one of the girls when the newly married lady's card had been brought in one afternoon shortly after the completion of the honeymoon, "don't make the mistake of calling her Mrs. Farrell."

The mother solemnly promised to commit no faux pas and as she went lownstairs was beard to repeat to "Meggs-Meggs-Meggs-not

At the conclusion of the call the old lady was met at the head of the stairs by the daughter, who at once observed an ominous expression of despondency on the old lady's face.

"Oh, mother," she exclaimed, "surely you didn't"-

"No. Clara," replied the mother emphatically, "I didn't. I was so careful to call ber Mrs. Meggs all the time." "Well, what's the trouble, then?"

"Oh, dear!" murmured the kindly old lady, as she sank into a chair. "It greeted her I said: I am glad to see you, Mrs. Meggs. How is Mr. Farrell? "-Harper's Weekly.

PROVING HIS GULT: Classified Ads

8y: KINGSBURY WELCH. (*) [Copyright, 1809, by American Press Association.]

I am a postoffice inspector and have had a good deal to do with ferreting out crime in the extraction of money from letters. I work on certain prineiples that I have evolved by long experience, and it is usually a very easy matter for me to hunt down a culprit. This is because when a man begins to steal he continues his thefts. They are not committed by various people. All one has to do is to find that one person. Besides, there are various traps we set for him which he is not likely to suspect.

I once had a case where I got some information in advance which seemed to facilitate any investigations I might Raymond Lowstutter, after spending make. John Crawlins, a merchant, complained to me that his letters were being robbed in passing through the postoffice. I asked him if any one in his employ had access to his mail, and he told me that it was received and taken to the postoffice by a cierk named Robert Byrnes. Byrnes was taking the money if any one in his employ was taking it, and he interposed no objection to my investigating in that direction. He had suspected Byrnes and had watched him.

Incognito I made the young man's acquaintance, or, rather, the acquaint ance of the family of which he was a part. He was the idol of his mother. a widow; two younger, sisters and a and set about winning her confidence. suspecting the cause of her worry to be her son. He was a gay, free handed young fellow, and whatever was on his mind was sure to come to the surface. His mother finally told me that her boy's generous nature was likely to prove his ruin. He made both ber, his sisters and Marion Swift presents that she was sure he could Pittsburg this morning to take part in not afford. She had heard of the exth. W. and J. parade and to see the traction of money from his employer's mail and was in great distress for fear her son was the culprit.

This was a pretty direct clew. Nevertheless there was one thing that prevented me from following it with proper persistence—sympathy. Mrs. Byrnes was a lovely woman, Marion Swift was an attractive and innocent girl, while Robert was a boy whom everyone loved. To confess the whole spending the day in Pittsburg with matter. I hadn't known Mrs. Byrnes an hour before I had made up my mind that she was the woman I was looking for for a wife.

I never occupied so much time in solving a detective problem-not that I couldn't solve it, but because 1 Miss Minnie Richardson is spending didn't wish it solved. It looked to me like one of those cases where a young man's heart runs away with his honesty, and I have known a number of them. If I fixed the crime upon him I would wound myself through not only his mother, but his betrothed and his sisters, aged respectively fifteen and twelve, all of whom I had come to

However, I have always believed that it is weakness to tamper with human frailties, and to shield years W. H. Coles, returned today to her Byrnes would be to my own distance. I knew a way to prove his guilt, and I determined to use it.

Nine times in ten in placing a sheet of folded paper in an envelope one will put in the folded edge first because the letter will go in that way easier. I asked the merchant to write a letter to one of his correspondents to whom he was used to send money. He the local grounds yesterday, the local did so. I put it in the envelope with team winning by a score of 12 to 11. the folded edge down and, sealing it, told him to send it to the postoffice at a certain hour by Robert Byrnes. He promised to do so, and I left him.

> The longest interval I have ever known in my life was that between to me. I held it in my hand fully ten during our big opening sale. minutes before I had the courage to open it. If the envelope had been opened there were nine chances in ten versed. Finally I tore off the cover. It was as I had placed it.

Though I was much relieved. I was not convinced and determined to make the experiment again and again till I was sure. But my suspicion, induced by the boy's mother's information, was disturbed, and I concluded to look elsewhere. After investigation I discovered that whenever Robert desired to leave the office earlier than usual he would confide the mail to another clerk named Hethrington. Hethrington had occupied his position for many years and had his employer's perfect confidence. I asked the merchant to send me a letter by Hethrington similar to the one he had already sent me and placed in the envelope the same way. He at first refused to do so, saying he knew all about Hethrington and intimated that he would find another man to do the work who could do it better. But he finally consented, and the letter was sent.

I confess I had no faith in making a discovery. Judge, then, of my surprise -and delight, I admit-when I drew the letter from the envelope in a reversed position.

I lost no time in confessing to the widow that my duty as postoffice inspector had forced me to apply tests that had resulted in establishing her son's innocence. The matter was kept a secret between us, and neither Robert por any one else ever knew that I had stood ready to expose him if he were found guilty. I have since attributed to that secret my success in winning my position in the family of which I form, I fatter myself, no fuconsiderable part. And I feel as confident that they all love me as that love them all.

Early Methods of Curing Skins.

The original process of curing skind was probably the simple one of cleaning and drying them. Removal of the hair by maccration to water seems to have been common among the very early tribes, and one writer has suggested that the idea was obtained from the natural process of depilation. They must certainly have been familiar with it in the case of drowned animals, where maceration can be plainly observed. Following this smoke, sour milk, oll and the brains of the animals themselves were found efficacious. Many of these primitive methods are employed in remote places at the present time.

At the meeting of council last night, the request of the bondsmen the garbage contractor, Samuel Nutting, to be dismissed brought on an other matters, and gave his opinion that the bondsmen could not be released, unless at the risk of the counreason many did not receive the proper cii. Councilman Lynn of the garbage committee made a report to the effect that Mr. Nutting was not doing his duty. R. J. Whitehead, one of the bondsmen, was present, and asked in what particular he was neglecting hisduty, to be informed that there were barrels and boxes left inside the door of the plant, the garbage was irregularly collected, and not properly burned. Besides this the garbage contractor was charged with being absent and neglecting his duty at various.

> The matter was discussed pro and con by the members of council, after which Mr. Nutting was instructed to remove the barrels and boxes, and collect the garbage regulariy, besides fulfilling his contract in other ways. He was instructed to remove variance once each week, in accordance with the ordinance, and collect for the same from the residents, or institute legal proceedings. Each householder must have an enclosed can to be used in the keeping of garbage.

The committee from the council, composed of J. Frew, H. S. Piersol peal that the mine is not dangerous and C. O. Frye, which met with the milkmen last week, reported that matters have been adjusted with one exception, that of local inspection. Council accepted the report and Anstructed the ordinance committee to revise the ordinance in compliance with the agreements reached.

> Councilman Piersol of the fire. water and light committee reported that bose secured from the Eureka Hose company in 1904 had failed to last out the guaranteed time, and it was decided to send it back with the request that better bose be sent, as per agreement.

The matter of the approach to the new Maple Creek bridge, which is to be erected near town, was discussed_ and council decided to build their own approach, and let Speers borough do the same. It was at first intended to act jointly with Speers in the building of the approach.

Solicitor McCloskey stated that the Charleroi Water company wanted an ordinance granting them the 10 years additional hydrant contract, agreed upon when matters were settled. An ordinance which Mr. McCloskey presanted passed first reading.

The ordinances in regard to the opening up of McKean avenue and concerning the change of the course of Lincoln avenue were held over for the time being.

President Piersol was in the chair, and councilmen present were J. Frew. C. O. Frye, William H. Calvert, Oscar Lynn and J. K. Hein.

Training Farmers.

A movement is on foot that has Governmental sanction to adapt the achools of the rural sections to express the daily life of the patrons. In other words, the object is to teach agriculture and its possibilities to such an extent that every child will be able to make a living from a piece of land if necessary, when it reaches its majority.

To accomplish this a system of extension work is planned, that will become Nation wide, and in some way cooperate with the various States to attain this end. It is believed that the farming population is ready and willing to support better schools as soon people feel after they have lynched a as the people are assured that the negro, or other persons supposed to educational system will be changed in have committed outrages. lege of acting as borough and school ! In Spite of the Old Lady's Gare She Managed to Blunder.

The daughters of a certain charming old lady in Washington are frequently much upset by the odd secial blunders of their parent, whose failings in this respect are, however, more than offset by her kindliness of manner.

Among the callers to the house of this family was a Mrs. Farrell, who, after some years of widowbood, again married, this time becoming the wife of a Mr. Meggs. "If you love us, mother," said one of the girls when the newly married lady's card had been brought in one afternoon shortly after the completion of the honormoon, "don't make the mistake of calling her Mrs. Farrell."

The mother sclemaly promised to commit no faux pas and as she went downstairs was beard to repeat to herself. "Meggs-Meggs-Meggs-not Farreil."

At the conclusion of the call the old lady was met at the head of the stair's by the daughter, who at once observed an ominous expression of despondency on the old lady's face.

"Oh. mother." she exclaimed, "surely and it is a question of who committed you didn't"-

"No. Clara," replied the mother emphatically, "I didn't. I was so careful to call her Mrs. Meggs all the time."

"Well, what's the trouble, then?" "Oh, dear!" murmured the kindly old lady, as she sank into a chair. "It was awful of me, I know! When I greeted her I said: 'I am glad to see you, Mrs. Meggs. How is Mr. Farrell?"-Harper's Weekly.

I am a postoffice inspector and have had a good deal to do with ferreting out crime in the extraction of money from letters. I work on certain principles that I have evolved by long experience, and it is usually a very easy matter for me to hunt down a culprit. This is because when a man begins to steal he continues his thefts. They are not committed by various people. All one has to do is to find that one person. Besides, there are various traps we set for him which he is not likely to suspect. I once had a case where I got some information in advance which seemed to facilitate any investigations I might nake. John Crawlins, a merchant, complained to me that his letters were being robbed in passing through the postoffice. I asked him if any one in his employ had access to his mail, and he told me that it was received and taken to the postoffice by a clerk named Robert Byrnes. Byrnes was taking the money if any one in his employ was taking it, and be interposed

W. and J. parade and to see the traction of money from his employer's mail and was in great distress for fear her son was the culprit.

This was a pretty direct clew. Nevertheless there was one thing that prevented me from following it with proper persistence-sympathy. Mrs. Byrnes was a lovely woman, Marlon Swift was an attractive and innocent Mrs. S. R. known in my life was that between writing and receiving that letter. I was in a private office at the postoffice when one of the clerks banded it | One-fourth off on all goods bought to me. I held it in my band fully ten during our big opening sale, minutes before I had the courage to open it. If the envelope had been opened there were nine chances in ten that the letter would be found reversed. Finally I tore off the cover.

It was as I had placed it. Though I was much relieved. I was not convinced and determined to make the experiment again and again till I was sure. But my suspicion, induced by the boy's mother's information, was disturbed, and I concluded to look eisewhere. After investigation I discorered that whenever Robert desired to leave the office earlier than usual he would confide the mail to another clerk named Hethrington. Hethrington had occupied his position for many years and had his employer's perfect confidence. I asked the merchant to send me a letter by Hethrington similar to the one he had already sent me and placed in the envelope the same way. He at first refused to do so, saying he knew all about Hethrington and intimated that he would find another man to do the work who could do it better. But he finally consented, and the letter was sent.

I confess I had no faith in making a discovery. Judge, then, of my surprise and delight, I admit-when I drew the letter from the envelope in a reversed position.

I lost no time in confessing to the widow that my duty as postoffice inspector had forced me to apply tests that had resulted in establishing her son's innocence. The matter was kept a secret between us, and neither Rob-

The Cat and the Owl.

"Metaphysics," said a clergyman, "is a subject that always makes one think of the cat and the owl.

"A cat, you know, once set forth in quest of bappiness. She wandered up. she wandered down. She questioned this animal and she questioned that. Finally, wrapped in meditation in a tree, she perceived an owl. "'Owl,' said the cat, 'tell me, most wise bird, where happiness is to be "'In 'meditation,' the owl replied

Meditation alone is the true secret of happiness." "But, said the cat, on what sub-

eet am I to medicate? "'On the subject,' the owl answered. which has occupied the race of owls

Early Methods of Curing 8kins. The original process of curing skins was probably the simple one of cleaning and drying them. Removal of the hair by maceration in water seems to have been common among the very early tribes, and one writer has suggested that the idea was obtained from the natural process of depilation. They must certainly have been familiar with. it in the case of drowned animals, where maceration can be plainly observed. Following this smoke, sour milk, oil and the brains of the animals ing the tone, the rich man asked, "And themselves were found efficacious. Many of these primitive methods are employed in remote places at the present time.

> Why the Old Man Danced a Jig. "What's Susie crying about?" asked the old farmer as he rubbed the fallow on his copper toed boots.

"Poor gai!" said his sympathetic wife. "Wind swept through the parior and blew all her pianuer music away." The old man jumped up and danced "Praise to glory!" be shouted. "And now if a cyclone comes along and blows away the planner we sartially will have something to be thankful for."-Boston Post.

Not Plety, but Pork. The following bit of humor is taken from "The Farringdons," an English romance. The speakers are Mrs. Bate. son and Mrs. Hankey, worthy wives. but not altogether above feeling a certain pleasure in showing up the ways

"They've no sense, men baven't" said Mrs. Hankey; "that's what's the matter with them."

"You never spoke a truer word. Mrs." Hankey," replied Mrs. Bateson, The very best of them don't properly know the difference between their souls and their stomachs and they fancy they are a-wrestling with their doubts when really it is their dinners that are wrestling with them.

"Now, take Bateson biseelf." continued Mrs. Bateson. "A kinder bus: band or better Christian never drew
